By the United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—L. Charles H. Hutchins, Terry Haute (ind.) skipper of the sunken destroyer Borie, told today how his engine room crew struggled in water up to their necks to keep power on, while fellow sailors battled with everything—cannon, machine guns, torpedoes, depth charges, and even knives—to destroy a U-boat pinned under the ship's hull.

The Borie finally sank the submarine, the second within a matter of hours, but she herself had to be sunk the next day by bombs from carrier planes after receiving mortal wounds in the ramming.

"We fought like a couple of cats," Hutchins described the death struggle.

Hutchins told of that night in the Atlantic when the Borie was ordered into an area where it was believed there was a submarine.

"We found it and dropped depth charges," he said. "We got fired back but our machine guns swept their deck pretty quick."

"Then we got set to ram him. Just as we were about to hit he turned and our bow slid over onto his forecastle. We stopped, the engines and held him there."

"We threw everything we could at him," Hutchins said. "We fired everything we had at him. We fired everything we had at him. We fired everything we had at him."

"One fellow who couldn't hit a floor with a knife threw his knife and caught a German in the stomach."

"The anti-aircraft gun shields barred them from firing down onto the sub. So the gunners fired through the shields to open up their own firing hole."

"But we had been pretty badly shot on the first ramming. I've got to give credit to that engine room crew. They kept the engines going with their heads just above water and stayed there during the entire battle."

"He tried to ram us instead," Hutchins related. "We fired three depth charges around him, straddling his conning tower. We stopped him just six feet from the Borie. The crew made a valiant effort to keep the ship afloat. One sailor dived into the engine room to turn off some valves."

"We never expected to see him again but somehow he got back," Hutchins added.

Finally, word of the ship's plight was relayed to the escort carrier Card. Help came soon. The Borie's crew abandoned ship but a men were lost in the fight, storm-tossed and sea. Planes from the Card bombed and sank the doomed destroyer.

MRS. HYSLOP LAWRENCE H. HYSLOP
Here gets his first look at his son

Pilot Dad Says Bombing Beats Pacing a Hospital

Fathers traditionally spend hours pacing hospital corridors when their children are born, but Lt. Lawrence Hyslop, who came home to Detroit Wednesday after completing 55 bombing missions over Italy and North Africa, had other things to do the day his son came into the world—he was navigating his bomber over the Nazi base at Bizerte.

"One of the advantages of being in action when your wife is in the hospital," Hyslop said with a grin, "is that you don't have time to worry."

Mrs. Betty Hyslop agreed with this idea because she doesn't think there's much to having a baby. She ought to know for Lawrence II was born during the practice blackout last May, "which makes him a real 'war baby,'" she said.

Despite the fact that Hyslop was overseas, he didn't have to wait as long as most fathers to see what his new son looked like because he received a Free Press V-Mail Baby picture when Lawrence was only three months old.

"We were bombing the Germans at Salerno the day I got the V-Mail letter with the picture of Lawrence and Betty on it," Hyslop said. "When I got back to our base in Sicily all the other pilots wanted to have a look at my baby's picture—that's how homesick they were for their own children."

The young navigator, who wears the Air Medal and eight Oak Leaf Clusters, and who has been recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross, has done a lot to make the world a safe place for his son.

He arrived in Egypt in January, 1943, with a B-25 bomber squadron which operated with British Gen. Montgomery's famous Eighth Army on the Nazi-chasing campaign from El Alamein, through Tobruk, Bengasi, Tripoli, Tunis and Bizerte.

"The American landing at Salerno was successful largely because of the effective air support which drove the Nazi planes out of the sky," Hyslop said.

Woman Held in Hotel Theft

Mrs. Harriet McCrory, 35 years old, of 15055 Whitcomb, who admitted Tuesday that she had robbed George Hill, 42, of 15046 Hubbell, a poultryman, of $1,000 in a hotel bedroom on Sept. 28, was ordered held without bond Wednesday for sentencing Nov. 24. Mrs. McCrory waived examination on a charge of grand larceny.

Two bar operators implicated with her, Frank Krause, 38, of 15014 Grand River, and Merle Smith, 42, of 7420 W. Warren, stood mute on arraignment Wednesday before Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman on a charge of conspiracy to commit larceny and pleas of not guilty were entered for them. Examination was set for Nov. 24 and each was placed under bond of $1,000.

Almanac Predicts a Milder Winter

DUBLIN, N. H., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The old Farmer's Almanac is about to bloom for the 132nd year. The editors, gazing into their famous, but fictitious, weather crystal, have this to predict:

"The coming winter will be milder than last—and probably milder than most."

"Mr. Weatherwise," in his prophecy, includes the tip that "thin and delicate onions mean a mild winter."

Ickes Slaps at Congress

Tired of Probes, He Tells Committee

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Secretary Harold L. Ickes, battling "curmudgeon" of the New Deal, went to the mat with Congress today by telling a House committee to its face that he was "tired to death of useless and fruitless committees of investigation."

The trigger-tempered interior secretary unloaded his denunciation at a hearing on the case of Dr. Robert Morris Lovett, Virgin Island official. Congress has ordered Lovett cut off the payroll Nov. 15 because an appropriations subcommittee accused him of associating with "Communist-front" organizations.

Ickes told the Insular Affairs Committee, conducting today's hearing, that Lovett would stay in Government employ without pay and would meanwhile fight in the courts to recover his salary on the grounds that the congressional order was unconstitutional.

The committee grilled Ickes for more than an hour, and at one point Rep. Chester H. Gross, Pennsylvania Republican, broke in to request that all Federal employees in the room rise and be counted. (Gross said later that he made the request because Ickes "had so many assistants answering us.")

This proved the last straw for Ickes, who has described himself as a "curmudgeon" in his autobiography. Red-faced and scowling, he stood up along with five Interior Department employees and declared:

"And may I add that we are tired to death of wasting public funds and public time in appearing before useless and fruitless committees of investigation."

De Marigny Slew Oakes for Money, Jury Is Told

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 10.—Alfred de Marigny was a fortune hunter, motivated by the murder of his wealthy father-in-law by "just for money," the prosecution charged today after the defense told the jury that the French count was the victim of lying policemen and was not the slayer of Sir Harry Oakes.

The thirty-six-year-old de Marigny, on trial for the blue-blooded slaying of Oakes in the early morning of July 8, clasped and unclasped his hands in the prisoner's cage as first the defense, and then the prosecution, summed up the testimony that 52 witnesses had unfolded in the last three weeks and two days.

Justice Sir Oscar Daly indicated that his charge to the jury would be made tomorrow. Under British law, the Count must be either acquitted or sent to the gallows.

Under Bahamas law, he needs only eight "not guilty" votes from the jury of 12 to win acquittal. The vote for conviction, however, must be unanimous.

The prosecution had not completed its summation when court adjourned for the day, and it appeared likely that the jury would not begin deliberations until late tomorrow.

Godfrey Higgs, defense attorney, urged jurors to "show the world that British justice is still supreme" by ignoring the testimony of prosecution fingerprint witnesses. A "lifed" fingerprint, allegedly made by de Marigny on a screen in Oakes' bedroom the night of the murder, was the prosecution's main evidence.

Job Centers Approved

Victory Group Would Speed Women-Hiring

Proposals to establish neighborhood industrial induction centers to recruit women for war work in Detroit plants were approved Wednesday by the Detroit-Victory Council at its weekly meeting at the Rackham Memorial Building.

The purpose of the centers, explained by William E. Stirtion, Board of Education vocational director, would be to provide a place where women workers could be recruited, but only a place where they could be given vocational interviews, physical examinations and training before entering war plants.

Stirtion also recommended that shopping pools be established in the centers through which working housewife could leave her work early in the morning and pick up the children who would be made for her at quitting time.

Stirtion said the cost of such a center could be borne by the Board of Education, and that many present training schools and centers could be used. The induction centers also would be used to place returned service men and women in the city.

Dr. Edna Noble White, chairman of the child care committee, reported that within the last 10 days the Federal Government had set up a program to carry all costs of day nurseries except for meals.

Parade will lead the new veterans group.

The parade is expected to be of about two hours' duration with 4,000 participants. It will be the principal feature of Armistice Day commemoration.

Armistice Day is a legal holiday. State, County, City departments and local courts will suspend business. Banks will close. So will the State liquor stores.

Postal deliveries except for perishables, parcel post and special deliveries will be skipped.

Because of the press of war work, factory schedules will not be interrupted nor will Federal agencies that work in close conjunction with war efforts take a holiday.

"We hope the parade will be a morale builder and help stress the job remaining to be done," Silvers said. He urged that recent veterans wear their uniforms.

Silvers, a past department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has as his chief of staff Robert G. # Deaths Start Harper Quiz

Overdoses of Drug Are Fatal to Two form of the drug injected by hypodermic caused the deaths.

The other physician, Dr. George T. Bradley, declined comment, saying that he had been asked by Prosecutor Dowling to refrain from statements.

I wrote my prescription in the same way that I have written thousands of others for both Harper and other hospitals," Dr. Hirschman said. "I had never heard of the existence of doryl in a crystal form until this case. I understand now that it is rather rare and is used almost exclusively by ophthalmologists in treatment of eyes."

He denied a previous statement of Dowling that both doctors had telephoned their prescriptions to Harper.

"I cannot say anything of the other case," he said, "but it seems unlikely in view of hospital procedure. And in my case, the written prescription is on the hospital charts."

He, too, said he had been asked by Dowling not to issue statements.

Although the deaths were three days apart, records of the Morgue show that both post mortems were held Nov. 8, indicating that the cause of Mrs. Deming's death was not known to hospital authorities when the same lethal dose was administered to Bloom.

Both doses were obtained through the central dispensary of the hospital, and administered in both cases by special nurses not members of the hospital staff, Dowling said.

Mrs. Deming, according to Dowling, was admitted to the hospital as a maternity patient Oct. 27. After the birth of her baby, she underwent an operation for hemorrhoids.

After the operation, Potter said, Dr. Hirschman directed that she be given an injection of doryl, commonly administered in such cases. She died shortly after the injection.

She was the wife of Lieut. Paul H. Deming, Jr. who visited her in the hospital last Thursday and returned to his Army post at Hamilton, O., to be informed a few hours later of her death.

Bloom's death came in similar manner, Dowling said. He was admitted to the hospital Nov. 3 for a hemorrhoidal operation and a doryl injection was prescribed.

Dowling said that there were two types of the doryl drug, one in a crystal form and the other a solution. "The solution is given intravenously while the crystal form, which is 800 times stronger, is administered as a throat wash."

The overdoses, Dowling said, were handed out because the type of doryl was not specified.

"The investigation is being conducted primarily," Dowling said, "to get all the facts and make certain that the same mistake will not be repeated."

Post mortems on the two deaths were performed at the hospital by Dr. Plinn Morse, Harper pathologist who immediately notified the coroner.

Dr. Morse refused comment on the cases.

"On Prosecutor Dowling's orders," he said, "we are making no statements. He has ordered that all information go through his office."

The office of the hospital director, Dr. Stewart Hamilton, also declined comment.

Crackdown Under New Management

When the Government cracked down Tuesday for the first time in the Detroit area with the maximum penalty of the Price Regulation Act by closing for one year a meat market that had "consistently violated price ceilings," the action had the sole result of acerbating two new owners of the market, it was learned Wednesday.

The owners allegedly guilty of the violations, Ernest Marcoux and Julius Hackman, who did not contest the suit before Judge Arthur F. Lederle, had asked on Oct. 4, permission to sell their stock, according to A. D. Ruegger, district enforcement officer in charge of the case for the OPA.

On the same date, Bernie Cox, OPA attorney, had asked the court to order the market closed for one year.

He demanded a previous statement of Dowling that both doctors had telephoned their prescriptions to Harper.

"I cannot say anything of the other case," he said, "but it seems unlikely in view of hospital procedure. And in my case, the written prescription is on the hospital charts."

He, too, said he had been asked by Dowling not to issue statements.

Although the deaths were three days apart, records of the Morgue show that both post mortems were held Nov. 8, indicating that the cause of Mrs. Deming's death was not known to hospital authorities when the same lethal dose was administered to Bloom.

Both doses were obtained through the central dispensary of the hospital, and administered in both cases by special nurses not members of the hospital staff, Dowling said.

Mrs. Deming, according to Dowling, was admitted to the hospital as a maternity patient Oct. 27. After the birth of her baby, she underwent an operation for hemorrhoids.

After the operation, Potter said, Dr. Hirschman directed that she be given an injection of doryl, commonly administered in such cases. She died shortly after the injection.

She was the wife of Lieut. Paul H. Deming, Jr. who visited her in the hospital last Thursday and returned to his Army post at Hamilton, O., to be informed a few hours later of her death.

Bloom's death came in similar manner, Dowling said. He was admitted to the hospital Nov. 3 for a hemorrhoidal operation and a doryl injection was prescribed.

Dowling said that there were two types of the doryl drug, one in a crystal form and the other a solution. "The solution is given intravenously while the crystal form, which is 800 times stronger, is administered as a throat wash."

The overdoses, Dowling said, were handed out because the type of doryl was not specified.

"The investigation is being conducted primarily," Dowling said, "to get all the facts and make certain that the same mistake will not be repeated."

Post mortems on the two deaths were performed at the hospital by Dr. Plinn Morse, Harper pathologist who immediately notified the coroner.

Dr. Morse refused comment on the cases.

"On Prosecutor Dowling's orders," he said, "we are making no statements. He has ordered that all information go through his office."

The office of the hospital director, Dr. Stewart Hamilton, also declined comment.

and Chester Hinkle, whom Ruegger said formerly were clerks in the store, purchased the stock from Marcoux and Hackman. Cox and Hinkle were greatly embarrassed, they said Wednesday, by the publicity given the penalty inflicted on the store in that customers refused to believe that the new owners were not involved in the violations.

As We See It--

Your Part Before Nov. 16

THE Detroit War Chest drive closes next

It is time to stress again the individual nature of CHEST participation. Only YOU can give YOUR share. Your share is determined by your ability to give plus the response of your heart to the humanitarian needs of our fighting forces, our neighbors and our allies.

How do you stand with your heart?

Insulting the Generals

REP. J. PERCY PRIEST'S appeal to his

Capitol Hill colleagues to stop trying to "draft" American general officers for political place will receive a hearty "Amen"

from Maine to California.

The names of Gen. MacArthur and Gen.

Marshall have lately drawn the word "draft" discussion, but the field of possibilities is by no means limited to them.

Rep. Priest said it was "embarrassing" to high officers that their names should be thus kicked around by the partisan-minded. The word is too mild. It's a rotten, low-down insult to members of our high command. And if any of them should take such irresponsible talk seriously, the result could be extremely dangerous to the outcome of the war.

Ernie Going Back

ERNIE PYLE is going back to the front.

Nobody told him to go. The decision is his own. "But what can a guy do?" he asks.

"I know millions of others who are reluctant, too, and they're even getting home."

Without much doubt Ernie is going because his choice was made for him by millions of readers. They have come to love the little guy. His stuff is written straight out of his heart. He doesn't master-mind. He doesn't second guess. He doesn't try to tell the high command what they should do. His columns are letters home from the boys who are shoulder-deep in the mud and filth and grime and hell of the front line.

The Free Press is proud once more to be the medium of presenting Ernie Pyle's work.

When Persecution Falls

THERE are categories of savagery and Nazis have overlooked none, from the most heinous to the most fiendish. From the tortures and agonies they have devised for application to the human body and the mortal mind begin to pall, their hate is directed brutally against immortal works that belong to all mankind.

They began in this latter division, as with the others, in Germany and have continued in other ravaged lands. Currently their mindless rage is being visited upon Italy.

The Nazis long since earned themselves an enduring place in the annals of bestial tyranny. Their ranking position among the destroyers of the accumulated treasures of the mind is equally secure.

Milk for the Schools

THE Board of Education's grim statement

underlines the seriousness of Detroit's milk situation. An arbitrary cut of from 50 to 60 per cent in the school system's milk supply is exactly the threat to child health that Board President Dr. Burt R. Shurly

declares it to be. There are 70,000 Detroit children fed every day in the schools and

A Test of Co-Operation

THE United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration set up by 44 allied and associated countries faces two tasks.

The first thing it must do is to relieve existing distress among peoples conquered and despoiled by the Germans and Japanese,

as fast as they are liberated by Allied arms.

That is part of the economic strategy of victory. The looted nations must have food, clothing and medicine to prevent further deaths, disease and debilitation caused by hunger and exposure.

After that rehabilitation will be joined with relief. The nations whose economies have been destroyed in the Nazi effort to subordinate them in an over-all German economy must be gotten on their feet again. As President Roosevelt says, a return to law and order must wait upon the restoration of the oppressed peoples to "a self-sustaining existence."

Assistance of this kind must be given by the nations that have to those that have not, until the ravages of German and Japanese barbarism have been repaired. That may take years. The sooner it is accomplished the sooner will production and prosperity return to the world.

THE Roosevelt Administration must expect to be attacked by its inveterate enemies for proposing that Americans shall "feed the world." As usual, they will be wrong. The job is too big, as Mr. Roosevelt says, for any one nation to handle. Canada, Australia and New Zealand, Argentina and other countries with food surpluses will assume their share of the load.

With his customary sound approach, Walter

Lippmann pointed out in our columns yesterday that the cost to the United States will not be great. That about half the needed relief requirements will be met out of Continental Europe itself; that France, The Netherlands and Belgium have the gold or foreign exchange with which to pay for what they get. Also he stressed—that Administration-baiters will ignore—that we have, altogether apart from the humanitarian aspect of it, a very great and practical interest in getting Europe back to work at the earliest possible moment. A nation like ours cannot prosper out of the pockets of paupers, any more than a merchant can in a neighborhood that has lost its purchasing power.

A great deal more is involved than merely feeding starving peoples in Europe and Asia and reviving their industries so that eventually they can feed and clothe themselves.

Which of the United Nations will furnish this necessity, which will furnish that, and how the cost of this vast reconstruction project will be allocated, are questions to which the UNRRA must work out answers.

The way it does this will measure the possibility of international co-operation in other directions.

As the first great experiment in collaboration within the framework of the Moscow declarations the UNRRA will be watched with worldwide interest. As a proving ground for the capacity of 44 independent and sovereign nations to work together for universal peace and security its importance cannot be overestimated.

This Time: Victory Day

TWENTY-FIVE years ago this morning the guns ceased their lethal debate and there was no more man's land on the battlefield of Europe. Man's hope had its finest hour then: There would be no more war. Man's hope began to wither at the Paris peace conference. It was trampled to death by totalitarian hosts marching to a more frightful war in Europe and in Asia during the 1930s. Only within the last few months have those hosts begun to move backward in retreat. But with that retreat man's

Good Morning

By Malcolm W. Binyan

PLANTING SEEDS OF DISCORD

For the quintessence of flapdoodle on the Russian situation we recommend a recent column by Paul Mallon, Mr. Hearst's Washington commentator.

He says Stalin's speech gives a better understanding of the "Stalin-Eisenhower declarations than the "generalized documents." What does he mean by "generalized"? He means that the declaration is that Anthony Eden and Cordell

Hull are a couple of fools who have been tricked by the wily Stalin.

"He (Stalin) forecast freedom for conquered and occupied nations to be chosen by their own people, which would be his conception of democracy," says Mallon.

So what? That is also the American concept of democracy: that the people have a right to choose any kind of a government they please; and, if they do not like it, to change it.

Then he criticizes Stalin for glorifying the Russian collectivist-socialist system. "Stalin left no vagueness as to what he believed in, saying directly that the Soviet state has been based on this war to be the 'form of organization' for both peace and war."

What did Mr. Mallon expect?

That Stalin would say: "Now this system

we have established by which we are winning the war—after the long list of failures under the czar—is a lousy one. Let's abolish it. I admit now that we should have gone Fascist, remained exclusive or tried to become a democracy. At least one of our people knew how to per cent or write."

"Words," Mallon continues, "do not mean the same as they do to Stalin. Let us fool ourselves. To us freedom means freedom of the individual, not collectivism. To us democracy means capitalism... not socialism.

Thus the same words have opposite meanings in Russia and the United States."

Stalin merely repeated what the Moscow pact decreed: That the people of Europe shall have the RIGHT TO CHOOSE THEIR OWN

FORM OF GOVERNMENT. That is the same in any language, but Mr. Mallon is too stupid to ignore that. "Our people also believe in the right to choose their government by this war superior to any other, including the Socialist system, although the Socialists have not stressed the point."

Again, so what? Neither of the Anglo-Saxon democracies, with their free press and their tradition of free speech, is on trial. The Russian experiment is. And who do we expect to achieve the achievements of that Russian experiment? The largest and most successful of the world's dictators, the Soviet dictator, the dyed-in-the-wool communist, the Old Lenin-Trotsky

kind of a fellow, is the one throwing rocks at it today.

Joe Davies, one of the richest men in America, is Stalin's Ambassador over there, and wrote a now famous book on what Russia is doing. He is not a Communist, but a man who ignores people. W. Averell

Armstrong, another of our richest men, is in charge of the American Red Cross. He is a Communist, but he is not a Communist, but a man who ignores people. Henry Ford, richest individual in America today, as far back as 1928 declared that the stabilization of Russia was the hope of world peace and gave to the Soviet government all the designs and patterns and helped educate their engineers in the techniques of mass production.

ARMISTICE DAY • 1943

The 25th anniversary of Armistice Day reminds us not only of our debt to the men and women of World War I but also to those who have paid the last grim measure of devotion to a nation at Pearl Harbor, at Corregidor, on Guadalcanal, in North Africa, on the rugged terrain of Italy, in the airways and waterways of the world. It brings to us a deeper realization of the price of freedom, a renewed determination to do our full part in the war effort.

A Plea from the Dead of Salerno

[ Written by MARTIN F. OWENS, of Detroit, in tribute to the heroic war dead of the nation ]

A tired moon looked down on Salerno
Where white sands wore splotches of red.
The breeze crept the beach at Salerno,
And tenderly sang to the dead
Who waded through Hell at Salerno,
To bathe in a fury of lead.

Sprawled out on the beach at Salerno,
Grotesque and pathetic to see,
They offered their lives at Salerno,
Their youth, and the bright years to be.
And Death "bid them in" at Salerno
That we and the world might be free.

Did you have a son at Salerno
Who bathed in the fury of lead?
Or do you merely think of Salerno
As a place where some young heroes bled
While the dawn swept the beach at Salerno
And kindled the eyes of the dead?

A sad moon looks down on Salerno,
Where white crosses gleam in the light,
On the whispering hills of Salerno
Dim shadows are restless tonight
And their souls challenge us from Salerno
To fiercely press on with the fight.

CHURCH ENTERS HOME TO AID CITY'S YOUTH

Catholic Archdiocese Gets Results in Drive Against Juvenile Delinquency

By JAMES S. POOLER
Free Press Staff Writer

There is one force in Detroit which has been active in the fight against juvenile delinquency before the present crusade. It has had significant results.

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, moving against child crime before the war, has accomplished these things:

- 1—Cut the numbers of its juvenile delinquents in half.
- 2—Increased the number of its public schoolchildren taking religious instruction from 10,000 to more than 50,000 in the last four years.
- 3—Intensified its youth program with a typical example the increase of Boy Scout troops from 35 to 50 in two years.
- 4—Worked ardently in the neglected field of the home, to have parents accept their responsibilities.

It has been a campaign that has meant tireless doorbell-ringing, placing special workers in the field, and utilizing all of its parishes.

Four years ago the archdiocese assigned Father John Wittstock as a full-time worker at the Juvenile Division of the Police Department. It was his work to contact the Catholic boys following their arrest and work for their rehabilitation. Working through the home, the Big Brother movement and parish priests, he has reduced the number of arrests one-half while the general trend to kid crime soared.

Letters are written to all parents after their boys get into trouble asking them to come in to discuss means of reform. Fifty per cent of them respond which means that, in most cases, rehabilitation started in the home. Personal visits were made to the homes of the other parents. It meant that even the less-interested parents were contacted and made aware of the problem.

"We don't claim to save every boy," Father Wittstock said. "But we feel that most boys with the proper supervision, proper training and the proper chance can come through."

Father John Ryan, head of the Co-Fraternity of Christian Doctrine, has been in charge of the program by which the archdiocese has increased the number of its public schoolchildren taking religious instruction.

A staff of 13 nuns, trained as social workers, work from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. every day making house-to-house calls to get parents to send their children for moral training. In one East Side area where 1,300 parents had failed to send their children for instruction the campaign this fall has brought in 900. Four missionaries were assigned recently to the area having the highest delinquency rate in Detroit and now have 275 children taking religious instruction where there were only 50 before.

Interparish activity of the Catholic churches here, both for adults and youngsters, has been intense since 1934. Among other things, extensive sports programs and wider use of parish centers for communal activities have been stressed.

The Catholic Youth Organization has played a vital role in bringing youngsters under moral restraints and into parish activities. Since 1937, it has operated a Home for Homeless Boys, 17 to 21, and has helped more than 600 such youths, many with police records.

The former Deutsches Haus, on the East Side, has been taken over and will be operated by the CYO as a Catholic Community Center.

Under the recent Archdiocesan Fund it is planned to set up four or five such centers in areas where they are most needed.

That is part of the picture of a huge achievement. It was started early and has lacked a problem at a point which many quarters have found inaccessible—the home.

"I'll double my bid if you'll fill it with a Manhattan made with Calvert Reserve!"

If you want to fill your cup of joy, bid the barman bring you a Manhattan made with Calvert Reserve. For this whiskey's rare "soft" flavor has a satisfying way of blending with—rather than overpowering—the other ingredients in a mixed drink. And now that every drop of Calvert Reserve is doubly precious—drawn from limited reserves* of irreplaceable stocks—why, sir, it's more than ever "the choicest whiskey you can drink or serve!"

Italy Asked to Fire Aide

Allied Request Based on Yugoslav Charges

By the Associated Press
LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Allies have requested Premier Pietro Badoglio to remove Gen. Mario Roatta, Italian chief of staff, as a result of Yugoslav charges that he was a "war criminal" responsible for a reign of terror in Yugoslavia, it was disclosed today.

The Germans, meanwhile, harassed by guerrilla activity from the Swiss border to the Franco-Italian Riviera, have offered amnesty to Italian and French patriots who surrendered before Nov. 15. The offer was believed aimed at an estimated 10,000 anti-Axis Italian troops who were reported to have dug in for the winter in the Alps.

The case of Gen. Roatta may be the first presented before the United Nations commission, which is to be set up in London soon by the United States, Russia, and Britain. The commission probably will decide whether Roatta will be sent to Yugoslavia for trial under terms of the Moscow Conference.

Minister of State Richard K. Law, who told the House of Commons today of the Allied request for Roatta's removal following an investigation of the Yugoslav charges, said that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower still had under consideration "the case of Gen. (Vittorio) Ambrosio."

Gen. Ambrosio also is charged with war crimes by the Yugoslavs. Badoglio's Cabinet as announced Sept. 30 included Roatta as chief of staff and Ambrosio as Army chief of staff.

Allies Place Italians Under New Commission

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today announced the formation of a control commission for Italy "which today has assumed the duty of carrying out the terms of the armistice and of aligning Italian economy in complete support of the United Nations' fight against Germany."

Maj. Gen. Kenyon A. Joyce, former commanding general of the Ninth Service Command, was appointed acting deputy president of the commission and its active head directly responsible to Eisenhower.

The commission replaces the military mission headed by the British Lt. Gen. F. W. Mason MacFarlane, which Eisenhower said had finished its work. MacFarlane is returning to his post as governor of Gibraltar.

An advisory council composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and the French Committee of National Liberation will work with the commission pursuant to a Moscow announcement. Representatives of Greece and Yugoslavia will be added to the council later.

Eisenhower announced that the AMG gradually would be replaced in Italian territory by an Italian administration under the supervision of the new commission.

He added with blunt emphasis, "We look to the Italian Government to broaden its political composition and to strengthen its administrative structure and the transfer from Allied Military Government to Italian administration will keep pace with this development. This does not mean the return of Italian territory to unrestricted Italian control."

Civilians May Get 5 Shoes a Year
CLEVELAND, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Present production figures point to about two and one-half pairs of shoes a year for civilians, W. W. Stephenson, shoe-rationing chief, said today.

If the supply is increased, the life of No. 1 airplane stamp in Book 3 will be shortened, he said. The definite life of the No. 1 airplane stamp will be announced early in December, Stephenson said.

Double-Header Slated by DAC Members

BY MARY ELLEN MENARD

CONTRIBUTING, in traditionally spectacular manner, to this season's calendar of club events will be the DAC's double-header games party scheduled to take place the evenings of Nov. 22 and 23.

Following the plan of 1942, because of war-time help and the popularity of the party, reservations may be made for either Monday or Tuesday evening, with the same bill of entertainment slated for both nights.

Reservations have already started coming in—party is for members only—and among those who'll be on deck Monday are Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Rose and Mr. and Mrs. William M. Barr. Another group planning to dine and play at the same table includes Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Fruehauf, Mr. and Mrs. James Vernon, the J. L. McKees and Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Stelbach.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Raquet will entertain at cocktails in their home before going down to the club, some of their guests to be Mr. and Mrs. Cassius Selden, the J. Henry Picklers and their niece, Joan MacDonald, Bruce Kirk and Mr. and Mrs. R. Elias Wolfe.

In from Birmingham

COMING IN from Birmingham for Monday's festivities will be Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Shock and Mr. and Mrs. Delmar R. Traver, who are planning to sit with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gallagher and the Arthur E. Whipples. Dr. and Mrs. O. W. White, the Harry A. Lomasons, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy and the latter's sister, Mrs. Hazel Crittenden, will make up still another table.

And on Tuesday night, sounds as though there'll be every bit as much of a crowd. Just a few of those anticipating the fun are Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Krue, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Kelly, the G. R. Cramers, the Hugh Martins, Mr. and Mrs. Carson M. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sanders, the George A. Gandells and their daughters, Beatrice and Gerry; Mr. and Mrs. John Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Dinger.

AWVS Christmas Present

DID YOU KNOW that the Army and Navy had recently asked for four million pints of blood? We didn't until yesterday, when Al Barrow came in to say that all units of AWVS were heading that way and planning to make their contributions a Christmas present to the American Red Cross Blood Bank.

Chairmen who are helping to organize the drive—contributions must be in between Thanksgiving and Dec. 15—include Mrs. George M. Shocum, Detroit unit; Mrs. Galen B. Ohmart, Indian Village unit; Mrs. Roston McKinnle, North unit; Mrs. Robert Wagner, Northwest unit; and Countess Cyril Tolstol, Grosse Pointe unit.

AWVS members will be equipped with forms—the campaign starts immediately—which are to be filled in and then returned to the chairmen. They in turn send them into the Red Cross and the appointment is made.

Home Town Talent

MRS. ROY D. CHAPIN was in such a terrific hurry to catch that west-bound train yesterday morning, that we scarcely had time to verify her departure. Did learn, however, that the compelling incentive for her trek was to see daughter Sammy, who had been out at Avenger Field, Sweetwater, Tex., receive those gleaming wings which will make her a full-fledged member of the WAFS. Sammy will be graduated on Saturday, she and her mother planning to be back in town sometime Tuesday.

And speaking of our pretty young local-ites who seem to be going places, Betty Hopkin, daughter of Mrs. John Hopkin, of Burlingame Ave., arrived in town last Sunday for her first visit home since joining the WAVES.

Looks wonderful in her uniform, and don't think her really arduous existence has hurt her a bit! She went to Hunters College first, you know, then on to Bainbridge, Md., for her preliminary nursing course.

Today she's leaving for the Brooklyn Naval Hospital for further training, after which she hopes to get her commission.

Coming and Going

ALICE FITZSIMONS, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., arrived on Sunday to spend several days visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Mulvey, of the same town.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Smith, of Los Angeles, are visitors in town, too. They arrived this morning to spend a few days with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Smith, of Provençal Road.

Mary Lou Price, of Fairfield Ave., left Monday for Chicago where she met Mrs. Howard A. Fox, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and then the two of them departed for Alhambra, N. M., for a brief visit with Mary Lou's fiancé, Lt. Howard Fox, Jr., USAAF.

Vincent-Hawes Rites Solemnized at Home

ANNOUNCEMENT is being made today of the marriage Wednesday evening of Col. J. G. Vincent, of Windmill Pointe Drive, and Mrs. Rae R. Hawes, of Bishop Road.

The ceremony was solemnized in Mrs. Hawes' home at 8 o'clock, with the Rev. Frank Pitt officiating. Charles H. Vincent, was his brother's best man, and Mrs. Lionel M. Woolson, of Birmingham, was Mrs. Hawes' attendant.

Immediately following the service, the couple left for Wright Field, Dayton, O. They will be at home on Windmill Pointe Drive after Jan. 15.

Pointe Women Meet for Art Instruction

SEVERAL MEMBERS of the Grosse Pointe Artists' Association are meeting on Saturday mornings in the home of Mrs. Robert G. Hartwick, of Touraine Road, for classes in portrait painting with Mrs. Madeline Meyer as the instructor.

In the group are Miss Virginia Louie, Mrs. Charles Wright, Jr., Mrs. Wilfred Casgrain, Mrs. John S. Sweeney, Jr., and Mrs. Edward F. Wright.

Children's Theater Draws Young Fry to Institute

BY NANCY DYGERT

ONE WOULD think there had been a Pied Piper in the vicinity of the Art Institute Wednesday from the way the youngsters thronged to the auditorium for the opening of Clare Tree Major's Children's Theater. Despite the snow flurries and Arctic winds sweeping around the corners, the house was jammed.

Hosts of regulars as well as many newcomers came to see "Little Men," the opening production. The Stalker Twins, David and Peter, came with their six-year-old sister Eleanor and their mother, Mrs. Hugh Stalker, while Mrs. Benjamin Micon brought Katy in from Bloomfield Hills after classes at the Bloomfield School were over. Little Pam Henry in her cute green and red Scotch coat and green cap was bubbling over with excitement, this being her first play season, and from the way her sister Kim's head was bobbing up and down we gathered she was getting the inside story.

Kim, who has been coming for three years, wore a green Scotch hat with a bright red coat over her plaid blouse and skirt. Both youngsters were with their mother, Mrs. Thomas Henry, Jr.

Eleven-year-old Margaret Crawford and her young sister Katherine, both in tan coats and brown Scotch hats, hurried in the door to be in their seats before curtain time; they came with their mother, Mrs. Albert S. Crawford.

Another one of the regulars there who hasn't missed a performance for three years (she started at the ripe old age of four) was Mary Joan Davis, looking like a Christmas doll in her little red skirt and green sweater, beanie and mittens. And, if you please, a little green pocketbook swinging from her arm.

She was with four of her little neighborhood chums, among them Ruth Gaertner and Ann Knox, and her mother, Mrs. G. M. Davis.

BOBBY AND PEGGY RONEY had a terrible time trying to sit through classes at St. Charles and the Grosse Pointe Sacred Heart Convent what with thinking about the play they would see.

Right back of them as they walked down to their seats were Mrs. George L. DeVos, her young son George, Jr., his pal, John Johnson, and his mamma, Mrs. Vein Johnson.

Others there were Dick and Patricia Donovan with Mrs. Thomas J. Donovan, Mrs. Louise A. Braun and Mary Jane, Gary Jeffries with Mrs. Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., John, Cynthia and Sylvia Hadley who came in from Bloomfield Hills with their mother, Mrs. S. C. Hadley, and the Foss boys, Walter and Robert, with Mrs. Harold R. Foss.

War Factories Change Small-Town Life in England

BY MARJORIE AVERY

Free Press London Correspondent

LONDON—The little town I'm thinking of used to be typically English. Up to because nothing is typical of anything any more—except war. When I thought of England in the abstract—I thought of the town because I had friends living there.

It wasn't one of those quaint, old places that look like a picture on a frosted Christmas card. It was a small business place, very thriving and bustling. Right in the center of the town was a square full of flowers and benches for pedestrians to stop and meditate on pleasant mornings. A square made from what used to be the church green of an older age.

Miss Avery

IT'D BEEN in England three months before I re-visited the town I'm thinking of. This was partly because I was busy and probably because I dreaded to go. I'd seen what war had done to London, how the smog of the past four years had sagged everything to a level of dusty shabbiness. I was afraid to see the little town again.

But one week-end when it was still warm and the harvests were spread like a golden carpet in the fields I went back. My friends still lived in the old house, crowded now into the back because they had war-workers billeted on them. Everyone who has extra space must share it.

It was impossible to get domestic help and the mother, now past 70, did a great deal of the work herself, and endured most of the tedium of standing in line to shop. The son, an architect in peacetime, and a veteran of the last war, is now in a factory, and his wife, a lawyer, is there also. The mother gets up very early to pack them large lunches and then sees there is a solid hot dinner waiting when they come home at night.

Turned Faces to the Future

THEY ASKED if I thought things much changed and I said guardedly, no, not much, but of course it was changed—terribly. They laughed teasingly, because they knew what I was feeling and English people have set their faces to the future and nobody and nothing can make them look back.

The town was completely ringed with war factories, many evacuated from larger cities. The clatter and the clang and the crowds and the smoke never let you alone. The worst thing of all was a constant, interminable crackling heat that smote the eardrums and jangled the nerves even in the house with the doors shut.

That crash, they said, was the Big Hammer, over across the hills and it went day and night, day and night, interminably, and would go on forever until peace should come and quiet it. Two of their roomers, they said, a young engineer and his wife, worked at the Big Hammer. I'd meet them because they were all very friendly and the young couple would be in after supper. Mary and John were their names.

"SO YOU DIDN'T quite expect to find us so completely in the war?" my hostess asked.

"Yes, I did," I said, "you'd told me in your letters and I expected it."

"But seeing for yourself is different, eh?" her son asked and laughed when I admitted it was.

Early that evening we were waiting, my hostess and I,

for the folks to come home for dinner and there came a ring at the door.

"Come with me," she said, "it's probably Mary and John."

On the doorstep, halloo and standing very quiet was a young girl. "It's Mary," my hostess said, "come in, Mary. Where's John?"

"Come in, Mary," said my hostess. Suddenly there was a chill in her voice. Still the girl didn't move and her eyes didn't flicker when her name was called. "John's dead," she said.

"What did you say, Mary?"

"John's dead." She walked slowly across the doorway and passed by us. We turned, too stunned to speak, and watched her mount the stairs, step by step. When she got to the turning, she paused for a moment and looked down on us. "John's dead," she said. We heard her shut the door.

Rhythmic Crash Breaks Silence

DETAILS CAME later. Something had gone wrong at the Big Hammer thrashing away behind the hills and John was hurt. They rushed him to the hospital but he was dead before Mary got there. She'd just come from the hospital when we found her on the steps. The funeral would be Monday. So that first night in the little town I lay thinking in the darkness as the cool night air drifted in the window. Down the hall, two doors away, deaf to all comfort, was Mary whose John was dead. And through the silence, at steady intervals, came a rhythmic crash of the Big Hammer, echoing in the night. Crrrr-ASH! Silence. Crrrr-ASH! Silence.

RETURN'S HOME

Mrs. Willard Johnson, of the Lee Crest, will return today, Thursday, from Marietta, O.

BY DOROTHY CLOUDMAN

EXECUTED WITH the finesse of our top American designers, the custom made collection of originals by a Detroit designer, reflects that "understated" theme we've been hearing about this season.

The attention to fine detail and the emphasis upon simple, fluid lines which bespeak graceful flattery are all points embodied in the New York originals . . . but they are distinctly different, standing firmly on their own merits.

A BLACK SATIN SHEATH, as illustrated, is exemplary of the subtlety expressed in the collection. Note the merest hint of a draped neckline achieved at the front with slight gathering of the material . . . at the back, with widened v-shaped tucks . . . The material is strictly pre-war . . . a pure dye satin . . . than which there is nothing lovelier.

The squared neckline gives you table-top interest—for this is a short dinner dress so loved by Detroiters. Moulded folds of material are artfully maneuvered into position . . . and the flattery to the wearer is easily witnessed.

Needless to say, the workmanship is superb.

Soapless Product

Just one teaspoonful of this new soapless washing product to one gallon of water washes dishes and glassware, cleaner and faster . . . leaves no greasy film. ## Exercise and Care Make 'Model' Hands

BY GRACE BARBER

HANDS FOR photographic modeling should be smooth . . . "liquid" . . . without visible knuckles . . . and fit into a six or six and a quarter glove.

Keep the skin of your hands as nice as your complexion.

This photographer groans at the thought of the number of lovely girls who slave over their faces but neglect their hands. Use hand lotion lavishly and often.

Use a lubricating cream and beauty gloves at least once a week, he advises.

Use hand lotion regularly according to the man who is head of a well-known model agency.

Your hands, he adds, may never be photographed for publication but every pair of eyes is really a camera that makes a mental picture of them.

A PHOTOGRAPHER noted for his hand pictures rates prospective models on these points: Are their hands supple, smooth, satin-like and perfectly groomed? While this may sound impossible, he insists that all hands can be graceful and smooth with proper care and a great deal of exercise.

FIRST AND foremost he insists on exercise. This will give the hands suppleness and the muscle control. The little and the fourth fingers are the hardest to control. Flip your hands up and down from the wrist to let the blood circulate to fingertips. Rotate your wrists clockwise and counter-clockwise. Play the piano and learn to typewrite for flexible hands, says he.

HE DESCRIBES an effective exercise for the thumb-plump hand. Beginning at one corner crumple a sheet of newspaper. This should be done until the hands feel tired. Another exercise is to tense the hands with fingers spread clawlike.

Following the initiation, tea was served with Marcella Bucon, Marjorie Hinson, Mary Carlson, Lillian Clark, Frances Gilliam and Marguerite Perry pouring.

Soil Erosion Spells Famine to U.S., Bromfield Warns Forum

Legislators Stand Mute at Bribery Arraignment

Pair Accused of Splitting $100 to Back Chiroprapy Bill in 1939

Facing grand-jury charges of sharing a $100 legislative bribe in 1939, State Rep. William G. Buckley, five-term Democratic veteran of the Detroit delegation, and former Rep. Joseph L. Kaminski, a 1939 member, stood mute when arraigned before Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman Wednesday.

"I told him the association did not have that kind of money and that as one of those representing me in making laws, he should support the bill without fee," Simmons said.

"His reply was that on that basis he was not interested. I had $100 cash in my pocket and finally asked Buckley if he would take that," Simmons said.

"Just then Kaminski walked in and listened while I covered with Buckley."

"When the $100 was mentioned again, Buckley looked at Kaminski, who nodded affirmatively. I handed the $100 to Buckley who counted out $50 and handed it to Kaminski. He put it in his pocket without saying a word."

The warrants, signed early Wednesday by Judge Skillman on request of Lt. William Watkins, of the State Police, followed brief examination of Herbert C. Simons, Detroit chiroprapist, and grew out of Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr's Lansing grand-jury inquiry into legislative graft.

CHARGES "SMEAR"
Buckley, 36 years old, lives at 13565 Santa Rosa with his wife and two children. Kaminski, 41, lives at 4509 Cooper. He is married and has three children.

"It is obviously a smear campaign," was Buckley's only comment after arraignment.

The two appeared in court with George S. Fitzgerald, defense counsel.

Richard J. Newman, special counsel designated by Attorney General Herbert C. Rushton, presided over the court.

CHIROPY BILL INVOLVED
The complaint charged that a $100 bribe was solicited by and paid to Buckley and Kaminski in April of 1939, in the Kales Building, Detroit, by Simmons, to win their support as members of the House of Representatives' Public Health Committee for a measure regulating the practice of chiropractic.

As chairman of the State Chiropractic Legislative Committee, Simmons said he invited the two members of the key committee to his office to discuss with them its merits.

Simmons testified that Buckley, first to arrive, asked him if he was a lobbyist and, when assured to the contrary, said he would support the bill for $500.

SAYS $500 TOO HIGH

Dearborn in Pay Suit

700 Employees Ask $90,000 Back Wages

More than 700 employees of the City of Dearborn, through their union, Wednesday sued the City for $90,000 which they claim is due them in back pay from cost-of-living wage increases granted by the Dearborn Common Council on March 2.

The suit was filed in Circuit Court by Local 321, State County and Municipal Workers (CIO), and Edward B. Craig, president of the local, against the City of Dearborn, the Council and the Treasurer. Judge Robert M. Toms signed an order to show cause why the money should not be paid, and set Nov. 19 for a hearing.

The union claims that the Council passed an ordinance last March granting pay raises on a sliding scale depending on the employees' salary. They claim further that the City Attorney ruled out the raises, saying that the Civil Service Commission, and not the Council, has the authority to change pay scales.

MRS. FORD, MRS. BRYANT, HENRY FORD, E. R. BRYANT, LOUIS BROMFIELD. Warnings of food shortage.

Experts Ask Land Study

800 in Attendance at Detroit Session

By RICHARD PAULSON
A permanent food shortage is a major threat to the United States unless corrective measures are immediately employed to safeguard the nation's soil, according to warnings of speakers at a soil conservation forum in the Rackham Memorial Building Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The "petty inconveniences of pointing rationing, meat and milk shortages" may spread into famines unless farmers accept scientific conservation methods, the 800 or more persons attending the forum conducted by the Michigan Committee for Friends of the Land were told.

BROMFIELD SPEAKER
Louis Bromfield, novelist and farmer, highlighted the forum addresses with a warning that the famines which have ravaged China, India's poverty and the floods which have wrought death and destruction in all nations are attributable to soil erosion and an absence of conservation.

"A growing population in this nation must be fed," Bromfield said, "and the only solution is a fertile, fruitful top soil."

"Our top soil is being washed into the sea and with it the richness of the land, which is the foundation of civilization."

FOOD SHORTAGE CAUSE
"Our current food shortage can be attributed to the neglect of the land and unless remedies are immediately forthcoming this food shortage may become permanent."

Bromfield presented an accounting of the program made on his own farm in Pleasant Valley, O.

By proper conservation methods he has achieved a 10 per cent increase in corn crops, a crop nearly twice as large as the acre and pastures which accommodate thriving cattle, nearly as many as he has previously grazed on the same terrain.

WATER RETAINED
He retains all of his top soil, which "each year gets better, better and better," he said, holds from 80 to 90 per cent of the water which previous years have over barren, useless soil, he said.

The lanky, sandy-haired author of "Night in Bombay," "The Green Bay Tree" and many other best-sellers, said:

"If all the land were taken care of properly we would eliminate a vast amount of suffering and death arising in many nations due to food shortages."

PRODUCTION BOOSTED
Dr. Hugh Hammond Bennett, chief of the United States Soil Conservation Service, which is directing a nation-wide movement for a return to the soil, pointed out that in the 10 per cent of the nation's farmland which is now being operated under scientific conservation methods the land produces an average of 20 per cent more per acre than it formerly did. Significantly enough, Henry Ford, an ardent leader of the back-to-land movement, accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bryant (the former, a brother of Mrs. Ford), left his multiple duties of war production at the Ford Motor Co. to attend the session.

ORGANIZATION FORMED
Upon suggestion of Gov. Kelly, who spoke at the evening session, the group will form a permanent Friends of the Land organization, with George E. Cook and Harvey Campbell of Detroit as co-chairmen. The program will gear into a national Friends of the Land movement.

Gov. Kelly called the movement "the start of a new educational effort among people of Michigan," and praised Detroiters for taking the lead. Ernest L. Anthony, dean of agriculture for Michigan State College, outlined Michigan's post-war land plans to function in four directions: production of food, production of products for industrial processing, utilization for health and recreation, and conservation of soil and water.

Husband Kills Self While Playing Host
Discomfited because his wife had left him, Russell Green, 46 years old, took his own life with a gun at 13320 Woodrow Wilson at 2:30 a. m. Wednesday, while a sailor whom he had invited up to his apartment for a beer sat drinking in the kitchen.

Police are satisfied, after paraffin tests of both men's fingertips, that Leo J. Scannell, 24, a Seabee on furlough from Camp Eddick, R. I., to his home at 7566 Dunedin, had no part in the shooting. Green's death was pronounced a suicide.

NWA to Plead for Detroit in World Route Hearing

First steps have been taken to get the Northwest Airlines, born in Detroit in 1926, a chance to see a final trial. The line has never had a terminal in Detroit. Two of the founders of the organization were William B. Stout and Eugene W. Lewis, president of the industrial National Bank.

Preliminary hearings on the application of the NWA to include Detroit on a transcontinental system between New York and Seattle, have been set for Dec. 6 before the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington. The application calls for extension of the NWA route from its eastern base at Milwaukee to New York, via Detroit and Cleveland.

The route would place Detroit on the direct line of air connection with Alaska, Japan, China, the Philippine Islands, India and Honolulu, NWA officials pointed out.

Don Martin, manager of the Detroit City Airport, said that the airline has been given assurance of adequate airport facilities.

CHILD DIES OF BURNS
Eighteen-month-old Dolores Guerra, who was scalded at 1374 E. Congress on Nov. 5 when she pulled a pan of boiling water off a stove, died Wednesday in Children's Hospital.

OPA Orders 27 Hearings

Ration-suspension hearings have been ordered by the Office of Price Administration for 27 business establishments in the Detroit district, it was announced Wednesday.

The hearings will be held before Frederic Glover, OPA hearing commissioner of Cleveland, in the Federal Building beginning Monday.

The alleged ration violations cover food, shoe and gasoline cases. The charges include shortages in meat-product inventories, sale of shoes without accepting ration coupons, sale of gasoline without accepting coupons and accepting unindented coupons.

HOSPITAL UNIT ELECTS
William J. Griffin was re-elected president of the Michigan Hospital Service at a meeting of the board of trustees at the Hotel Statler Wednesday evening. Other officers for 1944, also re-elected, are: Dr. Stewart Hamilton, vice president; Dr. E. F. Collins, treasurer; and John R. Mannix, secretary.

Felon Transfer Rule Revised

Completing a survey of books of the Wayne County Jail, William E. Davey, chief County accountant, recommended to the Board of Auditors Wednesday that in the future all prisoners be transferred to and from prisons by salaries and from prisons by salaries to deputies, who will not collect any additional fees.

He suggested further that Wayne County pay bills accruing from food and mileage expense, to be reimbursed by the State on State prisoners with all fees collected going into the County's general fund.

Walter Van Goethen, assistant chief County accountant, said he had advised Sheriff Andrew E. Baird of this plan, and the Sheriff declared he was "fully in accord with it."

YWCA TO SERVE DINNER
A special Thanksgiving dinner for young women workers will be served at the Central YWCA at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 24.

IT'S NEWS--Briefly Told

State Historical Groups to Meet in City Friday
Nearly all the Middle Western and several Eastern states will be represented at a meeting Friday of state historical societies called by the Detroit Historical Society, Robert H. Larson, director of the Detroit group, announced Wednesday.

The meeting will open with a dinner at 7 p. m. in the Detroit Y. W. C. A. building. Principal speakers will be Dr. David Henry, executive vice president of Wayne University, and L. Hubbard Shattuck, director of the Chicago Historical Society. More than 200 delegates are expected.

Timber Dealer Wins $20,371 Tax Refund
It took him 14 years to do it, but William C. Weber, eighty-eight-year-old dealer in Michigan timberlands, finally won a refund—worth interest — of 1929 income taxes Wednesday in Federal Court. The total amount was $20,371.

Weber, who lives at 8655 E. Jefferson, paid $16,993 on his 1927 and 1928 business under protest, claiming the amount represented net losses. The refund was ordered by Federal Judge Arthur F. Lederle.

Attorney Harry Allen, who represented Weber, said he had been active in timber operations since he was 20 years old, handling much acreage logged off in the Saginaw Valley. In recent years, he has dealt in timberlands of Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula.

Couple to Renew Vows on Sixtieth Wedding Day
Observing their sixtieth wedding anniversary Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Zeb, of 19277 Cameron, will renew their marriage vows at a high mass of thanksgiving in St. Rita's Church. A reception will be held in the evening at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Chauvin, of 6056 Kensington, one of their 16 children. Eleven other children live in or near Detroit. Mr. Zeb is 83 years old, his wife 77. Both are natives of Maine City.

Excuse Please! She Only Wanted Mail Box
Possibly no one was more surprised to see 10 pieces of motorized fire equipment roll up to Monroe and Farmer, one of the busiest corners downtown, than a middle-aged Negro woman who was seen near the fire-alarm box with a postcard in her hand Wednesday morning.

Apparently realizing her mistake, she hurried from the scene before she could be identified.

JUDGE IMPRESSED—Six months in prison was the penalty imposed Wednesday on Arthur Roland Phaneuf, 26 years old, formerly of Rhode Island, by Federal Judge Arthur Lederle for illegally wearing military campaign ribbons. Phaneuf said that he had pinned the ribbons on his civilian clothes to impress a seventeen-year-old usher to whom he became engaged in Detroit.

Marygrove to Mark Two Anniversaries
Celebrating its thirty-third anniversary, Marygrove College will observe Founder's Day Thursday in conjunction with the nineteenth anniversary of the founding of the teaching order at the school.

Seniors Kathryn Blanchard, Joan Carney and Joyce Hart will speak on the history of Catholic education and the teaching order at Marygrove at an all-college assembly at 3:30 p. m. in the Liberal Arts Building.

Traditional investiture ceremonies, at which the freshmen will receive academic caps and gowns, will be held at 4:30 p. m. Ceremonies will conclude with a banquet at 6:30 p. m. in Madame Cadillac Hall.

A Bowling Strikes Out in Effort to Erase Gambling from Alleys

Drastic Steps to Be Taken

Expulsion from U.S. Body Is Punishment

By W. V. EDGAR

In its drive to eradicate the gambling element from the National Bowling Congress is planning drastic action against all violators.

In the current issue of BOWLING, the official ABC magazine, attention is called to the constitution which provides for removal of alley certificates, cancelling of league sanctions and the suspending of individuals.

"No bowling proprietor shall allow on his premises handbooks, pools or any schemes of a gambling nature to be made or handled involving the outcome of bowling games," BOWLING states, "and failure to terminate such gambling practices in his establishment, or any part thereof, when such practices are within his knowledge, or when he has been notified of same, shall be cause for such violations being called to the attention of the local city association officers."

"Proprietors found guilty will be ordered by their city association to immediately cease, or cause to be terminated, such gambling practices. Upon refusal to obey such order, the alley certificates will be revoked, and the sanction of all leagues continuing to bowl in such establishments will be withdrawn."

It also was pointed out in the latest edict that "any American Bowling Congress member found to be participating in, or actively engaged in the management of any schemes within the framework of the gambling activity, shall, upon his refusal to discontinue such activities after having been notified by the officials of the local city association, be reported to the American Bowling Congress with the recommendation that he be expelled from organized bowling."

Herman Bengels, Pepsi-Cola team pulled the biggest surprise of the season in the Michigan Major League Wednesday night at Crenshaw. By coming within two pins of the league record to blank the second place S&S team, Jimmy Marshall panned the winners with 645, one pin more than his teammate, Emil Wozniak, had yielded individual honors in the match to Therman Gibson, of S&S, who cracked out a 661.

High score of the night went to Stan Stanula, of Sackman's, who fired a 688, while his partner dropped two to Murdock, 2810-2929. In the other matches De Luxe won a pair from Standard, 2749-2799; Jerry McCarthy's won the odds game from Bolle, 2861-2897; Olympics won a pair from Cotters, 2889-2788; Auto Club blanked Palmer Park, 2999-2722; De Luxe Die won two from Ramona, 2782-2709, and Kraetke took the odd game from Young Electric, 2769-2837.

The Olympic Recreation girls continued their amazing record in the Ladies' Major League Wednesday night at Mt. Elliott, by blanking Colonial Branch, 2445-2318. With this triple victory they now have a mark of only one defeat in 27 games. Louise Stockdale showed the way with a 521. Marion Gorman shot the night's high series with a 589 as Mt. Elliott blanked West Detroit, 2567-2298, and Grant by Enterprise, 2601-2399, to win three and regain second place. In the other matches Palmer Park drubbed Balke, 2404-2381; Chentromby routed Alcona, 2485-2405, and Rainbow shot the night's high series to blank Kinney's, 2646-2379.

Two high marks for the season were established in the Free Press Printers' League Wednesday at the Detroit Recreation when George Jakey, of the Tigers, put together games of 215, 202 and 204 for the Yankees, fished a 1971 for team total. There are only four men on each team.

Time Out!

"Well—well—welcome, then. Aren't you the guy who tackled me the one-and-a-half years ago when I was playing for University of Detroit?"

Ward to the Wise

By Charles P. Ward

ANNOUNCEMENT by George Williams Tuesday that he means to reopen the old Monroe AC gymnasium at 34 Monroe means that the Detroit chapter of the Cauliflower Fraternity again will have a home. It has been practically homeless since the depression put the late partners, Harry Tutill and Archie Silman, out of business. There was the last big-time gymnasium for professional boxers in Detroit although there have been a dozen or more where amateur boxers trained.

The proprietor of the new Monroe AC has been a quiet operator in the cauliflower industry for several years. He once managed Sammy Chivard and other fighters and is now quietly gathering another stable in the face of wartime difficulties. The desire to have a place for his gladiators to train led to his decision to revive the old Palace of Sport.

Williams says that he will give the boxers a completely modern gym in which to prepare for their fights. He even intends to have added to press room wherein members of the fraternity can meet the members of the press and advise information about the industry.

The reopening of 34 Monroe as a boxing center will bring nostalgic memories to the benighted brothers who were active in the boxing industry when the old Monroe AC was in its heyday. Those were the days when the Detroit chapter of the Cauliflower Fraternity was loaded with colorful characters.

IT WAS THERE that cheerful Charley Moore and Silent Mike McNulty waged their daily word wars over the days when the old, Charley doing his debating in Brooklyne and Silent Mike creating in the Irish brogue that he managed to acquire somehow in his native St. Paul.

It was there that the late Mr. Silman used to take his station at the door in the early afternoon when the fighters were training and solemnly ring a register as each customer passed through the turnstiles. The register, it should be added, was borrowed from an ancient trolley car.

It was in the old Monroe AC also that the proprietors got into a debate over a scale which was added on talking to the fighters in addition to giving their weights. It was a fortune-telling scale, and the difficulty occurred when a tumbler laid out to meet a tough Negro opponent, was warned by the scale that a dark man will enter your life.

"Yes," added the lad's manager who Co-Proprietor Silman, "and you will have to get a scale that will keep his mouth shut, if you want me to train my fighter in it."

The scale, it developed, was one that had been borrowed from the "official scale" brogue of a manager of fighters.

It was this irritable contention that the Co-Proprietor Tutill sent a feverish half hour trying to have Jack Johnson, who the turnstiles one day in order to cash in on the crowd of hero worshippers that trailed him into the place. A free rider, Johnson didn't get the idea at first but finally went through the turnstiles to oblige his friend and start the register ringing merrily.

It was his irritable contention that the owner of the beauty parlor induced the owner of the building to order him to depart because the tin-eared gent who wandered out of his place were the direct antithesis of walking advertisements for a beauty parlor.

Before the merger there was great rivalry between the patrons of the rival establishments, so great in fact that the patrons of one establishment would not mention the other by name. They merely called it "the other place."

Each gymnasium advertised that it was "the home of champions," and each did with some truth for many world champions trained in each place.

The Monroe AC has long needed a suitable gym wherein visiting boxers could train, but right now it needs more than anything else some boxers who could use such a place.

The prosperity which is the portion of Detroit motion picture theaters is perhaps best emphasized by the fact that but a single change is noted in the downtown area for the coming week.

Friday, the Fox will have "Guadalcanal Diary," the filmization of Richard Treaskis' story of happenings on that battlefield.

Otherwise the offerings will be unchanged. Produced by Twentieth Century-Fox, "Guadalcanal Diary" is said to follow closely the book, which is a spine-tingling story of "just guys." Preston Foster plays Father Donnelly, the hero who never worried about any man's creed; Lloyd Nolan is the tough top sergeant, "Hook" Malone; William Bendix is "Taxi," whose heart is in Brooklyn; and Richard Conte plays "Sowse," with indubious blood in his veins and an overpowering desire to exterminate all the Japs.

Along with the principal characters a huge cast is employed to bring the stirring narrative to life.

'Bell' Enters

Starting Thursday, the Technicolor version of "For Whom The Bell Tolls" enters its eighth and final week at the Wilson Theater. Performances are continuous, and no seats are reserved.

"Thank Your Lucky Stars," the musical, all-star musical comedy, holds over for a second week at the United Artists.

"Alert," featuring Richard Arlen and Wendy Barrie, as its accompaniment. Betty Davis, jitterbugging; Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Ann Sheridan, Olivia de Havilland, Dinah Shore, Alexis Smith, Joan Leslie and many others are in the forefront in this merry musical.

"Stage Door Canteen" has an even more imposing array of celebrities as it carries over for a third week at the Palms-State, with Grace Fields, Ray Bolger, Katharine Cornell, the Lunts, Helen Hays and Katharine Hepburn among the best remembered participants.

Beery Plays Boisterous Marine

Wallace Beery continues on the United Artists screen as a veteran top kick in "Salute to the Marines." It deals more with the fortunes of the non-combat Beery than it does with the Marines, which he does not rob it of any entertainment value. "Young Ideas," a tale of juvenile plotting, is the accompanying feature.

Starting Friday the Adams will take over "Top Man" and "Fired Wife." The same day Judy Garland and Van Heflin, in "Presenting Lily Mars" and "Mission to Moscow," will open on the screen at the Madison, Fisher, Riviera, Royal, Cinderella, RKO Uptown and Hollywood Theaters.

Coming to the Paradise stage Friday are Jimmie Lunceford and his recording orchestra, with James Young, song writer; Don Quason, Joe Thomas, Earl Carruthers and the Lunceford Glee Club featured. The screen will have "Here Comes Elmer."

BONNIE BAKER, singer, of "Oh, Johnnie" fame, stars at Mickey's Show Bar starting Friday.

JIMMY GARGANO, trumpeter, directs his orchestra for dancing and the show at Club Manhattan.

LONNIE DAY provides personality and character dancing at Club Haymarket.

POLLY AND JOY HOLLY, tap dancing sisters, join the Mayfair Club show Thursday.

Variety Club Plans Charity Benefit

The Variety Club of Detroit will stage its annual charity benefit party on Friday, Nov. 19, in the Book-Cadillac Hotel ballroom, at 9:30 p. m. It is announced by Charles Perry, chief Barker. The party will benefit the Heart of Variety fund, which aids underprivileged and handicapped children.

Chairman of the affair is James P. Sharkey, of Co-operative Theaters. Other members of the committee include Jack Keegan, of United Detroit Theaters, Frank Wetman, of W. and W. Theaters; J. Oliver Brooks, of Butfield Theaters Co.; Frank J. Downey, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; and Irving Belinsky, of the Film Exchange building.

Admission: $2.00, $1.00, 50c. Tickets on sale at all theaters. Box office open at 10:00 a. m. on Friday.

Armistice Day, '43, Finds World Locked in Greatest War of All Times

LEONARD LYONS

Nelson's Pipe
Something Else
American for Joe Stalin;
Hughes a Convert

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, is back from Russia. Nelson spent five weeks in the Soviet Union, where Stalin assured him that he could see anything he wanted to see, and go any place he wanted to go. Nelson visited all the places he wanted to inspect, with no restrictions. He presented a personal gift to Stalin—a pipe and American tobacco. . . . George McLaughlin, the Brooklyn banker and Dodge official, will enter the lists for the United States Senate.

COL. CARLOS P. ROMULO, author of the new book, "Mother America," is giving up most of his lecture tour, to work as Minister of Information in Quezon's cabinet. . . . President Roosevelt said: "There's only one lobby to which no one in Washington can say No—and that's The National Conference of Mayors." The next conference will be held in January. . . . Louis Untermeyer, the poet, is on leave from OWI. He's with the Limited Editions Club, and is doing a book on American humor.

GRACE FINLEY, of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, went to Camp Lejeune, New River, as a student. The instructor noticed that Miss Finley had fallen asleep in the classroom. He walked up to her, and shouted into her ear: "Well, it's time to wake up." She woke up—and looked into the eyes of Lt. Bradley Schwartz. Result: Marriage—the first formal military wedding between two officers ever held at the chapel in New River. It also was the first formal military wedding in which an officer had authorization to wear a wedding gown.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES, who vehemently opposed Wilson's League of Nations after the last war, now holds a different view about postwar co-operation with the other nations. . . . The New Yorker will do a profile on Louie, the Waiter, who coined the couplet "Send a Salami to Your Boy in the Army" and who, alone sold $2,000,000 in War Bonds at the delicatessen in the fifties, where he is employed. . . . John Gunther has two working titles for his new book about his last trip to Africa and Italy. They're "Outside Europe" and "Don't Read This." . . . Howard Lindsay, co-author and "Father" in "Life With Father," said at the anniversary party: "Dog is an extremely tasty dish in a business where it's dog eat dog."

ALTHOUGH THE CRITICS who went to Philadelphia to see Billy Rose's production of Oscar Hammerstein's "Carmen Jones" gave the show the highest praise and could offer no suggestions on how it possibly can be improved, Rose is revising the first-act finale. The producer by now has learned every trick of the trade. . . . Once, some years ago, he met Henry Ringling, then head of the Ringling Circus, and asked: "Why do you spot your best act, the animal act, at the opening? Why don't you spot it at the closing?" . . . "Because it takes 20 minutes to assemble the cages," Ringling explained. "No one ever has been able to do it in less time." . . . Rose then produced "Jumbo." He had an animal act in the finale. The cages were set up in 20 seconds.

MRS. CLAUDE PEPPER, wife of the Senator from Florida, tells of this early indication that her husband was meant to be a politician: When When Pepper was a college student, he went with some of his classmates to a show which featured a hypnotist. A group of students, including Pepper, were called to the stage. . . . The others all fell under the spell, and obeyed the hypnotist's command to sing—all except Pepper. The nervous hypnotist kept repeating his commands to the lone holdout, who didn't respond. "He's not a singer," someone whispered to the hypnotist. "Try something else." . . . "Make a speech," commanded the hypnotist. Pepper responded quickly with a speech. "We knew then," says Mrs. Pepper, "he was born to politics."

ON THE DAY Italy surrendered the Nazis tried to halt any celebrations by the Dutch by forbidding any flags to be displayed. But the Dutch, nevertheless, had their celebration. Throughout Holland, from windows, on sidewalks, lawns and rooftops, empty flagpoles suddenly sprouted. . . . A man who owns 30 per cent of A. C. Blumenthal's cafe in Mexico City, Cro's, receives $1,500 a month for his $6,000 investment. . . . Jan Masaryk describes the governments-in-exile, who are dependent upon the aid of the Four Allied Powers, as "the Beggars' Opera."

IFFY THE DOPESTER

"Oakes Case Nearing End." That's good!

Wallie and the Duke of Windsor can go back to the Bahamas.

It's a wise man who wakes up early so he can enjoy the luxury of not having to get up right away.

Twenty-five years ago today we celebrated the Armistice. We will be celebrating 25 years from now? That's the big question.

What Europe needs this time is a major operation, not a poltice. Therefore, De-lenda eat Berlin.

Trouble with the las war was the Jerries were allowed to quit before the knockout.

Winston Churchill was not up to his standard in that last speech of his. There were no half dozen phrases to be remembered by historians.

This De Gaulle seems to be the sort of a feller who, when everything seems to be going all right, has to kick the dog or upset a table.

This war is altogether different from the last one. We do not hear anything about cooties. Unless it's the Japs.

"Let's see," says our busy Governor, "what is there on today for me to appoint a committee to look into?"

So the Pencil
Pushing Gentry
Build Morale
in a Terribly
Noisy Manner

BY ANTHONY WEITZEL

NOTES ON CIVILIZATION: Some 300 faintly-bored draftsmen in the Fisher Body engineering setup looked the morale problem yesterday. And, frankly, fellow members of the bedraggled human race, it's about time SOMEBODY did. Anyway, these gallantly prosaic cogs in the war machine are clustered in the Research Laboratory, a rather obscure portion of the General Motors building group. All day long, shoulder to shoulder with certain comely maidens of similar skill, they draw pictures which are translated into spare parts.

ANY WAY you slice it, the job is not romantic. That is no way for a weary draftsman to kid himself that the spare part growing under his pencil is any part of Lania Turner. So the other day the boys were griping gently about the horrible tedium of life, when some drafting genius came up with an idea. The only way a man can add a little color to his life, he sighed, is with a load necktie. So why not hold a "Wild Tie Day" for everybody? That afternoon the lads rushed out and hunted the stores for load neckwear. But with the possible exception of the $100 neckwear on display down the street, in a tailor's window, there was nothing suitable. So the artists in the gang went to work. They bought $1 ties and they got out their paints and they painted lurid scores. . . . Hitler biting the dust. . . . Hirohito going to heaven. . . . Marines chasing Japs through the jungle. And yesterday everybody wore his load tie to work, and morale in the spare parts division jumped 100 per cent. Next week, the girls in the division are going to hold a "Wild Sweater Day." Gosh!

WINSTON CHURCHILL gets around these parous days almost as much as Mme. Roosevelt, and there are all sorts of stories roaming around about the British premier's rather Bohemian way of life. Harvey Klemmer, that restless gentleman who spent some years as a member of the working press in Detroit, was back in town this week, on his way to Washington and his duties with the Maritime Commission. And he brought with the rest of his baggage, a Churchill story.

Seems Klemmer was sent to Iceland on a Government mission and when he wound up his business he found he'd have to wait another three weeks to transport home. And just about that time a flotilla of British ships came along, on the way back from the historic Atlantic conference with F.D.R.

KLEMMER and a friend made contact with the British, and inquired diplomatically about the possibilities of going to England with the British Fleet. They talked to a seaman, who referred them to a chief petty officer, who referred them to an officer, who referred them to a commander. Rather abruptly they found themselves on a British ship, in a stateroom right next to the Churchill suite. Very pleasant trip, too. Churchill is a great movie fan, so the two hitch-hiking Yanks had to sit through all the current American films and a lot of oldies. The ship only had one projector, so at the end of every reel the lights were turned on, and while the operator changed reels, the stewards brought in tall glasses of Scotch and soda for all hands. Churchill took his, American fashion, with lots of ice. The rest of the British took theirs lukewarm, as is traditional. Anyway, Klemmer maintains that after a seven-reel film, everybody was feeling just dandy!

COUPLE of night club troupers built up a new version of the old "show must go on" gag the other night. . . . Jerry and Turk, who beat their brains out to entertain the customers at a local spot, took their mama to Canada the other afternoon. Coming back, in mid-evening, Mama ran afoul of the border guards who insisted on looking at her naturalization papers. Mama had her papers in the hotel, in Detroit. "No papers," said the guard, "no admittance to the United States." Jerry and Turk consulted their watches. If they went to the hotel and got mama's papers right away, they'd be late for the show. So they went back to Detroit alone, and entertained the customers for a couple of hours. . . . leaving Mama muttering wildly in broken English. . . . and certain she'd wind up in a concentration camp or some other place.

NOTES: The 31st Regiment, Michigan State Troops, will show the home folks Sunday what a crack outfit they've got.

The old 26th Engineer veterans get together Saturday night at the Fort Shelby for a reunion. . . . Tech. Sgt. Dick Wright of the Marines, who headlined last night's Navy Citizens committee dinner, says the biggest thrill he had in all those months in the Solomons was the rescue of Eddie Rickenbacker. . . . Proceeds of the Sorority Club party at Harmonie Hall Saturday night go to a new fund for disabled service men.

TURNING BACK

100 Years Ago Today Russia was reported building a huge fortress on the borders of Turkey-in-Asia, sufficient to lodge 50,000 men.

50 Years Ago Today sympathizers of the revolutionary party in Cuba said that a new revolution was well underway in that country in many provinces. . . . Spain was a hotbed of anarchy with plots against the government springing up everywhere.

25 Years Ago Today the World War ended when Germany signed armistice terms, agreeing to disarm completely. . . . American crowds were jubilant as the Allies announced that Germany's desire to rule the world were forever squelched.

10 Years Ago Today the Comptroller General of the United States declared that Henry Ford was again permitted to sell goods to the Government.

One Year Ago Today a report, later proved erroneous, came that the main French fleet was steaming out of Toulon to join forces with the United Nations.
